FRIDAY EVE'G., AUGUST 15, 1879.

GEORGE LINK, the German tutor, who is somebow involved in the Sprague Conkling affair, appears, according to his own account, not he had taken refuge, Linck relates that he re-I found my way into the kitchen, not so much to seek a hiding place as to find some weapon of detects, should be penetrate so far. I saw what I wanted, and kept my eyes on it." For tunately the irate Governor was misled by the "landlady's daughter," and did not "penetrate so far" as to force the discreet professor to the use of the dreadful weapon on which he had fixed his eyes. According to his own state ment, however, Linck was guilty of unpardon able insolence to Gov. Sprague, and richly de served a sound thrashing, which he would very probably have received had he been caught in his hiding place in the kitchen.

UNDERGROUND TRANSIT .- Col. O. Vandenburg, who holds the franchise for an underground railroad in New York city, has effected an arrangement with the Paris Bank to raise four million dollars in first mortgage bonds for the construction of the road from the Battery to Forty-seventh street. He is required to obtain subscriptions in New York to the amount of halt a million to commence operations and thereby to test the validity of his franchise. The plan is to have a tunnel for each track, so that perfect ventilation will be secured, as the locomotive will drive the air before it from one station to ap ther, and fresh air will be constantly rushing in from the station in the resr. The London underground railway has both tracks in one tunnel, and the passage of a train merely drives the air from one side to the other. Col. Vandenburg proposes to have a proposition to contract for the construction of the read for four million dollars, and to advance the half million required to procure the aid of the French bank. plans prepared are for nine stations—at the Bat-tery, Wall street, City Hall, Grand street, Lafayette Piace, Union Square, Madison Square, Thirty-third street and the terminus.
